

STATE PROFICE

South Dakota

South Dakota received $801,795 in federal funding for abstinence-only-until-marriage programs in Fiscal Year 2003.¹

South Dakota Sexuality Education Law

South Dakota law does not require schools to teach sexuality education. Instead, the decision is left up to local school boards. However, schools are required to teach "character development instruction," which includes sexual abstinence.

South Dakota does not specify if or how students can be exempted from sexuality education classes.

See South Dakota Statute 13-33-6.1.

Title V Abstinence-Only-Until-Marriage Funding

South Dakota received $139,295 in federal Title V funding in Fiscal Year 2003. The Title V abstinence-only-until-marriage grant requires states to provide three state-raised dollars or the equivalent in services for every four federal dollars received. The state match can be provided in part or in full by local groups. In South Dakota, the federal funding is matched by approximately $25,000 in state funds. The remainder of the match comes from sub-grantees. The South Dakota Department of Health oversees the funding.

In 2003, South Dakota granted Title V abstinence-only-until-marriage funding to five groups: the Minn-la-Kota Girl Scouts Council in Sioux Falls, the Northern Hills Pregnancy Care Center in Spearfish, the Abstinence Clearinghouse in Sioux Falls, Youth and Family Services in Rapid City, and Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) in Mitchell.

The Abstinence Clearinghouse uses its Title V abstinence-only-until-marriage funding to provide its Truth for Youth program in 25 schools or communities in the eastern half of South Dakota. This program focuses on youth ages 15 to 17. The Abstinence Clearinghouse's website includes medically inaccurate information regarding condom failure rates and the effects of sexually transmitted disease (STDs).

The Northern Hill Pregnancy Center is a crisis pregnancy center. Its website includes biased information such as the following list of the physical and emotional "aftermath" of abortion:

Physical:

- Excessive bleeding, may require blood transfusions.
- Perforated uterus or damage to other organs.
- Chronic and acute infections.
- Intense pain.
- Incomplete removal of baby or placenta.
- High fever, convulsions, shock, coma.
- Increase in miscarriages, ectopic (tubal) pregnancies, premature births, and stillbirths.
- Irregular pap smears; breast cancer.
- Infertility.
- Death.

Emotional:

- Inability to tolerate the sound of a vacuum cleaner or dentist's drill, because it sounds like the suction machine.
- Depression; mental breakdown.
- Fear of punishment from God.
- Thoughts of suicide.

Special Projects of Regional and National Significance–Community Based Abstinence Education (SPRANS–CBAE) and Adolescent Family Life Act (AFLA) Grantees South Dakota has no SPRANS–CBAE grantees. South Dakota has three AFLA grantees: Teca Aicibleza Pi Kte (Youth Understanding Themselves) Project, Youth and Family Services, and Rural American Initiative.

All AFLA funding in South Dakota is directed toward Native American Youth. The Oglala Sioux Tribe runs the Teca Aicibleza Pi Kte (Youth Understanding Themselves) Project. This project links the Lakota tradition with the abstinence message on the Pine Ridge Reservation and includes talking circles with families and experiential learning activities.

The Rural American Initiative Partnership works with the St. Isaac Joques Catholic Parish and targets Native American males ages 12 to 19 in daily after-school programming using the Sex Can Wait and Lifeskills curricula.
