KENTUCKY

Kentucky received $3,433,812 in federal funding for abstinence-only-until-marriage programs in Fiscal Year 2005.

Kentucky Sexuality Education Law and Policy
All Kentucky schools follow the Department of Education’s Program of Studies, required instruction for students in grades six through twelve. Instruction about human sexuality must focus on abstinence as the only sure means of avoiding unwanted pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. No specific curriculum is required. However, state funds are available for local health departments to use to help young people postpone sexual involvement.

Kentucky does not require parental permission for students to participate in sexuality or HIV/AIDS education nor does it say whether parents or guardians can remove their children from such classes.

See Kentucky Department of Education’s Program of Studies.

Recent Legislation
SIECUS is not aware of any proposed legislation regarding sexuality education in Kentucky.

Events of Note
Group Files Lawsuit over Pro-Gay Diversity Training in Schools
February 2005; Boyd County, KY
Ever since a gay-straight alliance (GSA) tried to form in the fall of 2002, Boyd County, KY, has been embroiled in a controversy over its existence. In February 2005, the controversy continued when the Alliance Defense Fund, an Arizona-based law group affiliated with several conservative Christian organizations, filed a lawsuit against the Boyd County School district in an attempt to stop students from attending required diversity training sessions.

After more than two years of negotiation and a successful lawsuit by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) allowing the GSA, the Boyd County GSA ultimately disbanded for other reasons. However, as part of the settlement that ended the lawsuit in February 2004, the school agreed to hold an anti-harassment training with an emphasis on sexual orientation for all district staff as well as middle school and high school students.

In August 2004, teachers and staff in the district participated in the anti-harassment training. A new debate began, however, when parents complained that a video scheduled to be shown in the student training program had a “pro-gay position.” Many parents threatened to take their children out of school on the day of the training, and as many as one-third of the students skipped the anti-harassment training.

The Alliance Defense Fund was enlisted by a group of parents and pledged to sue the school district if it did not adopt an opt-out policy for the training. A lawyer for the group said that, “mandatory training on tolerance for homosexuals violates the right of conscience of parents and students who believe such behavior immoral.”

On February 15, 2005, the Alliance Defense Fund followed through with its threat and filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Ashland, KY, on behalf of a student and two sets of parents, arguing that the mandatory training is unconstitutional and forces students to accept homosexuality. An attorney for the group explained, “the Supreme Court is clear on this matter: Americans have an absolute right to their beliefs. This training obviously crosses that constitutional line.” The lawsuit has yet to be decided.

Title V Abstinence-Only-Until-Marriage Funding
Kentucky received $817,297 in federal Title V abstinence-only-until-marriage funding in Fiscal Year 2005. The Title V grant requires states to provide three state-raised dollars or the equivalent in services for every four federal dollars received. The state match may be provided in part or in full by local groups. Kentucky provides $250,000 in state funds, the remainder of the match is provided by sub-grantees through both funding and in-kind services. The Kentucky Department of Health Services oversees all Title V funding.

Organizations are encouraged to apply for this money through local health departments or districts. Sub-grantees can receive up to $50,000. SIECUS was unable to obtain the names of sub-grantees.

Community-Based Abstinence Education (CBAE)’ and Adolescent Family Life Act (AFLA) Grantees
There are three CBAE grantees in Kentucky: Door of Hope Pregnancy Care Center, New Hope Center Inc, and Women for Life. There are no AFLA grantees in Kentucky. In addition, Heritage Community Services receives a discretionary grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

All three CBAE grantees are crisis pregnancy centers. Crisis pregnancy centers typically advertise as providing medical services and then use anti-choice propaganda, misinformation, and fear and shame tactics to dissuade women facing unintended pregnancy from exercising their right to choose. According to Door of Hope Pregnancy Care Center’s website, “Door of Hope realizes its goals through a commitment to prayer, and through being sensitive, obedient and responsive to the leading of the Holy Spirit.”

New Hope Center uses the Choosing the Best program with fifth and sixth graders. SIECUS reviewed Choosing the Best PATH and found that it provides endless information on the negative consequences of premarital sexual activity and utilizes a variety of tactics to suggest that teens should feel guilty, embarrassed, and ashamed of sexual behavior. For example, Choosing the Best PATH asks students: “How does being sexually active as a teen affect how a person feels about himself or herself?” The suggested answer is: “Can feel sad about losing virginity, loss of self-respect, blames self for getting pregnant or contracting an STD.” It goes on to say, “sexual activity also can lead to the trashing of a person’s reputation, resulting in the loss of friends.”

Heritage Community Services uses Heritage Keepers, a character-based curriculum that it designed. SIECUS’ review of this program found that it relied on fear and shame and contained biased messages about gender and non-traditional family structures.

This refers to the fiscal year for the Federal Government, which begins on October 1 and ends on September 30. The fiscal year is designated by the calendar year in which it ends; for example, Fiscal Year 2005 begins on October 1, 2004 and ends on September 30, 2005.

In Fiscal Year 2004 SPRANS–CBAE was administered within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) by the Maternal and Child Health Bureau. In Fiscal Year 2005 this funding was moved to HHS’ Administration for Children and Families and is now referred to simply as Community-Based Abstinence Education (CBAE).
